

House Approves Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a $21.3 billion economic emergency tax cut bill Thursday night after an historic vote attaching to it an oil industry tax-hiking amendment to kill the famous petroleum depletion allowance.

"This is a new day for the people of this country who have been ripped off for 50 years," said Rep. William J. Green, D-Pa., who spearheaded the drive to put the depletion allowance repeal aboard the antirecession tax cut bill.

After several dramatic decisions during the amending process — including a 248-163 vote to hitch the depletion-killing provision to the sweeping series of tax reductions — the final legislative package headed out the House on a 317-97 roll call.

It was dispatched to the Senate, where the legislation could run into trouble from oil-state forces opposed to abolishing the depletion allowance, which saves the petroleum industry roughly $2.5 billion a year in federal taxes.

The tax bill, designed to fight the recession by stimulating consumer spending and business investment, contains $16.211 billion for individual taxpayers — a mixture of 1974 tax rebates, 1975 tax cuts and tax relief for the working poor.

The bill also provides $5.072 in tax help for businesses, aimed chiefly to promote plant expansion and thus provide more jobs.

Green declared that "the American people will steamroller the Senate into the Potomac" if the senators delay in adopting the tax cut package "just to protect the vested interests of the oil industry."

He said he thinks the bill could be brought to a vote in the Senate within two weeks.

Just minutes before passing the bill, the House rejected 251-160 a Republican-backed alternative tax cut proposal which would have lumped $12.2 billion into a 1974 tax rebate, instead of the bill's $16.2 billion combination of 1974 rebates and 1975 tax cuts.

Green's amendment would end the oil and gas 22% depletion provision retroactive to the start of this year. The depletion provision had been adopted in 1926 to encourage exploration and development of new oil reserves.

Oil-state forces argued that the allowance is a valuable investment incentive, but critics denounced it as a wasteful tax subsidy which should be eliminated from the law.

Green told the House that the tax cut bill "is veto-proof, it is the only chance we will get to repeal the depletion allowance."

"This is a question of whether we are going to have justice. People are paying taxes through the nose while the rich oil companies are paying effectively no taxes," he said.

However, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, argued against attaching the depletion allowance repeal to this tax cut bill.

"Let's get back to what this bill is about," Ullman said. "The country is in a grave recession that may turn into a depression and the people are looking to us for responsible action," he said.

Ullman argued that placing a depletion allowance repeal provision aboard the tax cut bill would slow down the economic emergency measure when it reaches the Senate.

By 216-197, the House defeated a proposed amendment by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas. Wilson sought to keep a depletion allowance for some independents whose production is under 3,000 barrels a day of oil or a related amount of natural gas.

Debate on the economic emergency tax cut bill began after the House agreed to have a floor vote on whether to attach to the legislation an amendment abolishing the controversial oil depletion allowance.

The opening clash came on the basic question of whether to even take up the legislation under conditions recommended by the Rules Committee.

Republicans protested that a Democratic caucus ruling was dictating how Congress could act on taxes.

In the initial showdown, the House first voted 222 to 180 in a test of strength and then 242 to 162 in the key ballot to accept the Rules Committee's plan for debate and items to be considered.

That showdown developed after the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee refused to attach a depletion allowance repeal provision to the tax cut bill.

The drive to abolish the depletion allowance then began in the caucus of all House Democrats, which rejected the pleas of its leadership and voted 152 to 99 to demand that the 11 Democrats running the Rules Committee quickly clear the tax cut bill for action and to let the House vote on whether to attach petroleum depletion amendments.

The Ways and Means Committee recommended that the $16.21 billion tax cut proposed for individuals be divided half in tax rebates from 1974 and half in 1975 tax cuts. It recommended the $5.07 billion for businesses be made chiefly by increasing the investment tax credit as an incentive to buy machinery.

The individual tax relief in this measure is distributed 55.1% to those with gross income up to $10,000; 34.4% to those making between $10,000 and $20,000, and the other 10.5% to those with income above $20,000.

The committee-approved bill's 1974 tax rebate features called for a general 10% refund in a lump sum to be paid starting in May, with a top rebate of $200 and a minimum of $100. However, anyone who paid under $100 in federal taxes last year would simply get all of it back.

For this year, the bill carried tax cuts giving more take-home pay through lower tax withholding starting May 1 reflecting the legislation's boosts in minimum and maximum standard deductions.

150 FIREMEN INJURED ... fighting telephone building fire.

170,000 Telephones Knocked Out In Blaze

NEW YORK (AP) — An intense, 16-hour-long fire in a key 11-story telephone switching center on the Lower East Side knocked out 170,000 phones Thursday, injured 150 firemen and caused an estimated $5 million to $10 million in damage.

Earlier, company officials had set the damage at up to $50 million, but a top-ranking executive revised the estimate downward.

At the height of the five-alarm blaze, mobile phone service to 600 regular customers in the city was halted to clear all radio channels for official use.

One veteran of 18 years in the department called it "the worst smoke and heat condition I've ever had to work in."

With the fire already more than 12 hours out of control, Fire Commissioner John O'Hagan in early afternoon ordered a flooding operation from the fifth floor of the New York Telephone Co. building. Water was poured through ducts and shafts to get at the heart of the blaze in the sub-basement and first three floors.

The neighborhood at 13th Street and Second Avenue was shrouded with heavy, acrid black smoke given off by the burning cable sheaths.

"It's not only very dark, it smells like hell," reported Fireman John Russo, referring to conditions inside the building.

"In a fire like this, you depend on the guy next to you," said Fireman Ronald Shea. "We tied a rope around each other so we wouldn't get lost, because you couldn't see a hand in front of you."

Commissioner O'Hagan, his white raincoat turned dirty black from smoke and soot, said the blaze may have begun amidst cables and electrical equipment in the sub-basement. It was reported shortly before 12:30 a.m. and eventually brought more than 200 firemen to the scene.

Due to the heavy smoke, the nearby Stuyvesant High School was evacuated. So was New York Eye and Ear Hospital, adjoining the burning building. The 147 patients were sent home or to other institutions. A 30-family tenement was cleared.

"This is the worst disaster in terms of service in the history of the New York Telephone Co.," said George Kennelly, assistant vice president.

A dozen telephone exchanges were knocked out in the area served by the center — nearly 450 square blocks between Fifth Avenue and the East River and between 26th Street on the north and the Brooklyn Bridge to the south. Direct telephone service to at least three police precincts went out, and five of nine trunk lines to the citywide emergency police number, 911, were cut off.

Budget Unit OKs Penal Package

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee approved a $10 million state tax budget for the Department of Correctional Services, which includes funding for Gov. J. James Exon's "penal reform package."

Included in the governor's federally-subsidized proposals is the establishment of community-based correctional projects at Columbus, Omaha, Scottsbluff and the Kearney-Hastings-Grand Island triangle.

That $1.2 million proposal will be 90% funded with an anticipated federal grant funneled through the Crime Commission.

Includes Other Items
Other items in the package include funding for jail standards and inspections, separation of adult and juvenile parole operations, increased foster care payments, establishment of a "halfway house" for adult parolees and staffing of a chemical dependency unit at the old Crete missile site.

The latter project is awaiting legislative approval in a separate bill.

The budget also provides for

Legislature

15 additional correctional officers, 15 additional inmate counselors and an increase in the lump sum payment to discharged inmates from $30 to $100.

The $2 million penal reform package requires the expenditure of some $255,000 in state tax funds.

Hefty Increase
The total $10 million state tax funding figure compares with a 1974-75 appropriation of $8.4 million.

The all-funds budget for the department, including federal aid, would be some $14 million.

More than half of that total, nearly $7½ million, will go for the operation of the Penal Complex, which includes the Penitentiary and the Men's Reformatory.

The committee earmarked $200,000 in state tax funds for medical and educational services and supplies.

Dr. Kenneth Reighter, prison physician, had asked the senators for sufficient medical funding to hire two physician's assistants and to purchase a new X-Ray machine.

Committee action had the apparent effect of granting the request.

The proposed chemical dependency unit at Crete would serve between 60 and 70 inmates during the coming year, then be able to handle 100 the year after.

Estimated cost of purchasing and renovating the facility by July 1 is $118,000.

Federal Funding
The $30,000 in state tax funding for staffing the facility would attract $270,000 in federal funding for a $300,000 total operational budget in fiscal 1975-76.

Correctional budget decisions were largely made by the committee Wednesday, but approval of the community-based projects was delayed until Thursday.

Exon's recommended funding for a new state prison will come before the committee later in a capital construction budget bill.

During consideration of 10 other agency budgets Thursday, the committee refused to take action on a budget for the Department of Labor.

Five of the nine senators declined to vote on either the legislative or executive staff proposal for funding the agency.

Marvel Raps Lease
"I am protesting the Jado lease," Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings declared, apparently speaking for a majority of the committee members.

The department negotiated a controversial lease with the Jado Investment Company for office space in Omaha last year. "I protest the way the Exon administration handles leases," Marvel said. The senator had made the matter an issue in his 1974 gubernatorial election challenge of Gov. J. James Exon.

Marvel believes the lease should have been undertaken through public bidding processes. "It's a question of ethics, not technical legality," he said. The department's budget will be considered at a later time.

'Open Campus' Continuation OK'd

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"Responsibility" emerged repeatedly as the key to continuing "open campus" for high school students, as a parade of parents and students Thursday night spoke overwhelmingly in favor of the Lincoln Public Schools policy.

Only two individuals opposed the privilege, allowing students to leave school grounds during the lunch hour, and two who said they opposed the policy waffled at the podium before an overflow crowd of about 300 at the Lincoln Board of Education hearing.

The board obliged what rapidly became the consensus opinion, unanimously approving Lou Roper's motion to reaffirm the present open campus policy — continuing it this school year and reviewing it on an annual basis.

Board member Marvin Stewart first offered a motion establishing open campus on a permanent basis, but without a second and other board members' sentiment for review, he withdrew the proposals.

Makes Students Aware
Annual review, said Board President T.E. Dewey, will assure "students are continually made aware of the responsibility" they share to retain the privilege.

Noticeably absent was Bert Schlitching, 3401 Prescott, whose complaints about open campus abuses and petition drive to revoke the policy led to the hearing. Roper publicly thanked Schlitching for "bringing attention" to the issue, which has "shown students how the process works."

Board member Pearl Goldenshtein said she was "proud of the students" and the reasonable manner in which they assembled their support of open campus and presented it.

Supt. John Prasch, following testimony, said, "Fortunately, we're in a community where we can talk these things over," but the open campus issue, he reminded, is a "serious matter."

"Work To Be Done"
It points out there is "work to be done," Prasch said, that the district needs "better supervision on the part of our staff, and more responsibility on the part of our students."

The board action followed a recommendation by Prasch and the four high school principals who unanimously urged continuation of open campus.

About 20 people testified in favor during the two-hour hearing, including Mrs. Keay Hachiya of 3910 Stockwell, who called on the board to "initiate a program to give help, support and understanding" for students who drink, smoke, take drugs, litter, shoplift or cause traffic problems during the lunch hour.

"Can't Blame Teachers"
However, Mrs. Hachiya said, she has "never considered" educators responsible for students' behavioral problems, and teachers cannot be blamed for the "shortcomings, failures and frustrations of parents."

Municipal Court Judge Janice L. Gradwohl, 2925 Jackson Drive, spoke as a parent of her two high school children, offering to "put to rest once and for all the vague allegations" that open campus "spawns delinquency."

As a deputy county attorney for 8½ years dealing with juvenile cases, Mrs. Gradwohl said she "found there is no correlation between open campus and delinquency, or closed campus and delinquency."

Contrast Figures Cited

Citing Lincoln Police Department records, she said adult arrests rose 9% during 1973-74, while police contacts with 17-year-olds decreased 3%. And police contacts with 13- and 14-year-olds (who have closed campus) increased four times that of students aged 16 and 17, she said.

Bertha Davis, 2100 N. 61st, presented petitions with about 1,000 signatures showing 86% opposed to open campus. She stated no reasons for the opposition.

Another opponent, Mrs. Roger G. Scheidt of 3340 Prescott, said she is concerned that abusers are "influencing others to join them," and "certain responsibility lies with the administration and teachers to see that rules are enforced."

Lois Hansen of 2611 S. 46th said the Lincoln Education Association and its board "supports open campus," and Jerry Schleich, 1830 St. James Road, said East High families are "overwhelmingly satisfied" with the policy.

Disservice Seen

Attorney Norman Krivosha, 2835 O'Reilly Drive and a Southeast parent, said the board members "would do a great disservice if you turn your back" on students who "have earned the right" to keep open campus by behaving well.

But Russell Smith of 8021 Lillibridge said, "If privileges are abused, they should be removed." He said students consider open campus a "right." His comment that open campus contributes to energy problems because of an "unnecessary amount of auto driving," drew belated laughter later, when a person in the audience observed that since few who came opposed the policy, "Talk about a waste of gas."

Until recently, the shelterbelts were a major wind erosion deterrent in parts of northeastern and north central Nebraska.

Today, technology and the demand for more crops is pushing out the trees. Whole shelterbelts — thousands of trees — are being bulldozed root and branch to make room for a new kind of irrigation system.

Trees Must Go
Because the center pivot, sprinkler irrigation system is most efficient when it operates in quarter-mile circles, trees must be removed from its way.

Nebraska's "transition zone," the area that divides eastern Nebraska from the Sandhills, has light sandy soils and receives light rainfall. This makes the zone the most subject to wind erosion of any cultivated soil in the state, according to a Soil Conservation Service (SCS) forester.

But it also makes the incentive for farmers to switch over to the new irrigation system that much greater.

Glenn Spreeman, assistant manager of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District, says in trying to resolve this conflict he is "caught between a rock and a hard place."

Although land management officials agree that tree removal will not cause widespread wind erosion so long as farmers use other methods to prevent blowing soil — such as tilling the soil as little as possible and leaving part of a crop on the field — in a dry year farmers may be forced to use crop residue as silage for livestock.

Richard Gavit, acting chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's forestry department and acting state forester, believes wind erosion is increasing.

"In some areas you can see the soil blowing in the spring and winter months, even when there is some snow on the ground," said Gavit, who has been working in northeast Nebraska for 15 years.

Bruce Miller, road construction foreman for Holt County, said he doesn't think "near as many trees are being planted as are being removed."

"In the last three years at least 100 shelterbelts have been removed," Miller said.

New Belts Skippy
Miller said belts removed were generally one-fourth to one-half mile long and seven to 14 rows wide. New shelterbelts usually are planted one row wide, according to the SCS.

For at least half the irrigation systems being put in some shelterbelts are being taken out. And I can guarantee if our wells go dry we're going to have erosion," Miller said.

From 1935 to 1942, about 477 miles of field windbreaks were planted in Antelope County alone, SCS records show. By fiscal 1974, windbreaks planted had fallen to just over five miles.

Darrell Hoffman, of Hoffman Construction in Plainview, said his company is clearing as many trees as last year. In 1974 he cleared 49 quarters. Five years ago he did only four or five quarters a year.

William A. Hayes, an agronomist for the 12-state Midwest Technical Service Center of the SCS, said most soil carried by wind doesn't travel far. Hayes said 90% of windblown soil never gets more than a foot off the ground, although the 10% made up of very fine dust can move hundreds of miles.

17 Tons An Acre

If a field with sandy loam soil has no crop residue, no shelterbelt and is 2,000 feet wide, Hayes said, soil loss would be about 17 tons per acre in an average year.

Five tons of soil loss per acre is considered tolerable, he said.

UNL's Gavit said he doesn't think a farmer should take out shelterbelts, but understands the farmer's predicament: "He needs all the land he can get."

"I would suggest that farmers not use the last 15 feet of the pivot to make room for at least a one-row belt. Our attitude is that one row is better than none," he said.

Jim Carr, an SCS forester, said, "Maybe we need to come up with a design that fits the system. We're trying to come up with a plant that would only get six or seven feet high and still give protection."

But "it would be 10 years before any are readily available," he said.

Meanwhile, the shelterbelts come out. As Carr put it: "Circles and straight lines don't go together."

Hoover Misused Files — Levi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty Gen Edward H Levi confirmed Thursday that the late J Edgar Hoover filed derogatory information about presidents and congressmen in his FBI office.

In an appearance before a House Judiciary subcommittee, Levi also cited cases in which he said the FBI was used by presidents and White House aides for political purposes.

Levi said the FBI now has 6½ million files, including 1,605 involving congressmen.

Deputy Atty. Gen Lawrence Silberman told newsmen that the misuse of the agency included investigation of congressional critics for former Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon B. Johnson and political work for Johnson.

Levi said that Hoover kept in his office 48 files that included derogatory information on officials, including presidents and 17 congressmen, two of whom are still in Congress.

In the most detailed public airing yet, Levi, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley and Silberman also said that derogatory material has been given to congressmen to use against other congressmen.

And they said the FBI's counterintelligence unit did release derogatory information to the press on what it considered extremists in order to discredit them.

The FBI files include some allegations on congressmen's "morals or drinking habits," Levi said. He said such allegations are filed but not investigated.

But Kelley said there has not been a single attempt to use the FBI politically in the 19 months he has been director, and Silberman said none of the past misuse appeared criminal.

The testimony was delivered to the House civil rights subcommittee, two members of which said the FBI has files on them.

One, Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., who was one of the House's most vocal anti-Vietnam war critics, said the FBI investigated him before he was elected.

The other member, Rep. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio, said the FBI still has a 20-year-old security clearance report on him.

Levi told the congressmen his staff uncovered what he called the abuses and he was publicly confirming them as "the beginning steps" to cooperate with Congress in preventing them from happening again.

"Some abuses have occurred," Levi said, "and we must attempt to find the best remedial steps which will protect the bureau in its proper mission."

Although Levi gave no names and only sparse details, some of the misuses had already been disclosed, and Silberman confirmed to newsmen that some of them involved Nixon and Johnson.

Demos Propose Energy Program

From Press Reports

Washington — Senate and House Democrats agreed Thursday on a comprehensive national energy program that would have little effect on consumers' pocketbooks, but would change the lifestyle of Americans by making them pay more to drive big cars.

President Ford agreed to discuss it with Democratic leaders on Friday.

The compromise program worked out after weeks of behind-the-scenes haggling between the two houses of Congress, will be presented as an alternative to President Ford's program.

Gas Tax Hike

Its major proposals include a gasoline tax increase of no more than five cents a gallon and a graduated tax to be imposed on purchasers of large, gas-guzzling automobiles.

The Democrats, who have been attacking Ford's program as "grossly inflationary," rejected Ford's proposal to curb energy consumption by means of much higher gasoline prices.

Instead, the Democrats' basic theme is to go after heavy users of gasoline to cut energy consumption and reduce oil imports.

Energy Trust Fund

The increased gasoline tax would go into an energy trust fund, which would be used to increase domestic energy supplies.

The caucus of all Senate Democrats quickly adopted it and instructed Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield to seek a meeting between Ford and congressional Democrats in an effort to reach a compromise on a national energy policy.

Mansfield said Ford agreed to a meeting at the White House Friday afternoon with six Democratic leaders. They include Mansfield, House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., House majority leader; Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., Democratic whip in the Senate; Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., and Rep. James C. Wright, D-Tex.

Other Proposals

Other proposals in the Democratic package include the creation of an energy production board, similar to the war production board of World War II, to ease the way for rapid new production of domestic energy supplies.

The board, congressional spokesmen said, would control production schedules and generally oversee energy production.

Also proposed is a mandated automobile efficiency measure that would require automobile manufacturers to produce cars with a 20 to 21-mile-per-gallon average by 1980 and 28 miles per gallon by 1985.

The Democrats' program, like the President's, calls for a gradual reduction of oil imports. The Democrats want to import 500,000 barrels a day less by the end of the first year after legislation is passed, to be followed by a 1.6 million barrel-a-day reduction in the second year and a 5 million barrel daily reduction by 1980.

Conservation

If these goals are not met, the Democrats propose a series of stringent conservation measures. These would include:

- A required Sunday closing of gas stations across the country
- Controls on the use of credit cards to buy gasoline
- Imposition of an outright import quota.
- Imposition of an allocation program at the gas station level.
- Standby gas rationing authority

In addition that the Democratic plan would:

- Impose a graduated excise tax on new automobiles which get worst mileage than the average new car and grant a tax rebate on new American cars with better than average mileage
- Increase Social Security benefits by approximately 8 7/8% retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975. The administration has proposed keeping this year's cost of living increase at 5%, starting July 1.
- Reject Ford's proposal to remove price controls on oil produced domestically and on natural gas which is shipped across state borders
- Impose an excess profits tax on large oil companies.
- Result in a fiscal 1976 budget deficit $10 billion more than the $53.7 billion deficit the administration foresees

N.Y. Times Summary

Cambodia 'Retrievable'

Washington — Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger told a House Appropriations Subcommittee the situation in Cambodia was "grim" but not "irretrievable" if the United States were to provide additional military aid. He said he did not believe, as reported by the New York Times, that the Cambodian government would fall, whether or not the United States provided the emergency military aid requested by the Ford administration.

Candidate Kidnaped

Berlin — Peter Lorenz, the Christian Democratic candidate for mayor of West Berlin, was kidnaped Thursday, three days before the election, as he was being driven to his office. He and his captors, at least three persons, a woman and two men, vanished despite a wide search by the police in which they were joined by the American and British military. Officials believed that the kidnapers were connected with leftist radical groups.

Land Reform Planned

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia — Ethiopia's provisional military government, currently fighting a civil war in its northern-most province of Eritrea, is about to plunge into an equally, if not more, explosive program of national land reform.

Pledge Not Binding

Washington — Sen. Frank Church said Thursday that he had received assurances that Central Intelligence Agency employees testifying before the Senate's Select Committee on Intelligence Activities would not be bound by the signed secrecy pledge that the agency requires as a condition of employment.

Faisal Won't Attend

Vienna — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia has advised Algeria he will not be attending the meeting of chiefs of state of the oil exporting countries next month. The reason is reported to be the refusal of the other countries to reduce oil prices.

Airlines Seek OK

New York — National airlines sought government approval Thursday to introduce a new "no frills" passenger service with a cut-rate fare in a separate cabin with a 25-cent charge for coffee, tea or milk, and bring-your-own meal service. On some routes, the fares would be lower than those on buses and trains.

Index Forecasts Financial Gloom

Washington (AP) — The government index designed to predict future economic trends plunged in January, the sixth consecutive month the statistical crystal ball forecast financial gloom.

The Commerce Department said the drop in January registered 1.3% for a six-month decline totaling 12.6%, a record.

It marked the first six-month fall since the 1957-58 recession, when the cumulative index fell 9%.

The index figures released Thursday came amid other indicators of the lowering economic storm:

- The U.S. trade deficit hit $210.5 million in January, primarily from a surge of imported oil.
- A Treasury Department official said the current round of inflation must be brought under sharp control or the nation will face high levels of inflation in the future.
- Productivity fell for the first time since 1959, the date the government first began keeping track of it.

$347 Million Aid Bill For Railroads Passed

Washington (AP) — Legislation appropriating $125 million for financially ailing railroads was sent to President Ford Thursday for expected prompt signature.

The House took the final action by voice vote, accepting Senate amendments to the bill without which some lines said they could not long continue in operation.

It provides $100 million principally for the Penn Central and $25 million for the Erie Lackawanna. These funds are the first installment of a total $347 million in grants and government-backed loans authorized in a companion measure.

The remainder of the $143.5 million appropriation bill provides funds for remodeling a building the House is taking over for additional office space and expansion of Senate parking facilities.

The bill also repeals an earlier limitation on travel by government employees.

Denver (AP) — Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon Thursday called for establishment of a national food policy, like the nation's energy policy, to deal with food shortages.

Exon said the nation cannot go without a policy on energy and food is too crucial a commodity for the United States to have no long-range and immediate plans for producing, storing and using it.

Exon, in a speech at the Far-Mar-Co Inc. convention, said the nation's governors are providing ideas and innovative programs on agriculture and the nation's food supply, but it is up to Congress and President Ford to pass laws.

"I say that modern agriculture be regarded and treated as the nation's most basic of industries and that agricultural policies be developed that will provide stability, in contrast to the reactive proposals that are so typical of today and yesterday."

Exon said, "If we are going to have one good chance of turning around a faltering economy or stabilizing this great nation of ours, it will be based on what happens to agriculture."

"Our food situation versus world population is a virtual powderkeg," Exon said. "While our farmers are presently looking straight down the barrel at potential financial disaster, we are on the other hand confronted with a frightening situation in meeting future world food needs."

Exon said a national food and fiber board should be established "to develop the detailed production management programs necessary to insure an adequate supply of food and fiber for the future."

The board "would represent all phases of modern agriculture from the farm-ranch level to the consumer," Exon said.

"Such a board would have broad powers to stabilize agricultural prices by various control and informational devices and raise earnings of commercial producers to levels comparable to the earnings of other non-agricultural industries."

"Without reasonable reserves any slight change in demand or supply causes violent changes in the prices of agricultural products—the evidence of this statement surrounds us in banner headlines."

The reserve program advanced by Exon would maintain a two-month supply of storable grains and fibers. One half of that would be maintained by farmers and the rest held by the government.

The reserves would be placed on the open market whenever the price fell below a "level where efficient producers earn returns on resources less than the current rate earned by non-agricultural business," Exon said.

Exon said foreign buyers of U.S. food should be required to sign long-term contracts as a means of determining future demand.

Far-Mar-Co., based in Hutchinson, Kan., is the nation's largest regional grain marketing cooperative with 600 local farm cooperatives and total membership of 250,000 in Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wyoming.

YAF To Publish Paper

A group of Young Americans for Freedom members from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Lincoln area high schools and the community have begun publishing a conservative newspaper titled "Choice."

According to editor Steve Daly, Choice is intended to contrast with the point of view of the UNL student paper, Daily Nebraskan, and the two underground papers, the Lincoln Gazette and the Dispatch.

"For that matter, adult Lincolinites do not have ready access to a conservative newspaper," Daly said, and added that the paper would be distributed downtown as well as on campuses.

He said the staff would like to publish the paper bi-weekly, but for now it will come out when the money becomes available

Taking Up Broommaking At 72 Is Not 'Last Straw'

Minden — When Chris Hansen was first approached about becoming a broommaker, he said a job such as that "would be the very last straw."

He was, after all, then a man of 72 who wanted a stab at retirement instead of a completely new vocation. But the management of Pioneer Village was so persistent that he decided to try.

Now, at a sprightly age 85, Chris is still sewing and winding. And his dancing Danish eyes confirm that he's loving every minute of a full 40-hour work week.

The main function of the lifetime Kearney Countian is to demonstrate one of the numerous hand skills which have yielded to mechanization. He also sells visitors some 8,000 or so brooms turned out annually by him and part-timer Neal Whitten.

Sharp Wit
But what may be the oldest's most valuable contribution to the village is his friendly across-the-counter chatter. Coming through soft and clear is a wit honed by eight decades of living.

"One of these days I'm gonna box me up a few brooms and send them to the White House," he tells a sophisticated New Yorker or a family of touring Californians. "Somebody left a few crumbs there that need sweeping out."

Or maybe he kids a group of retirees by quipping that "I'm going to slow down a bit myself someday before I start getting old." He also pokes fun at himself and his strongly Danish community in noting that CHRIS ... started 13 years ago.

"Danes are actually only Swedes with their brains knocked out."

Easily mixing conversation with his work, Chris volunteers some personal recollections on one village attraction. The old District 13 country school, one of several restored buildings on the Minden site, is "where I got my eighth-grade college education."

The school had also served Harold Warp, the Chicago plastics manufacturer who founded Pioneer Village in 1953, and his seven brothers and sisters. The broommaker recalled when the school functioned with "one big room, one little teacher and 65 kids."

Hansen's earlier work years were divided between farming and patrolling irrigation ditches for the Nebraska Public Power District. Daughter Mrs. Merl Nielsen and her family still live on the old Hansen family farm southeast of town. The widower's other daughter, Mrs. Clair Johnson, is a Kansas City resident.

Of the village's approximately 60 employees, managers LaVern and Ruby Nielsen say few have been on the payroll longer than Chris. And perhaps none have made as many friends.

"Just the other day a Spokane woman sent us a poem she had written about our broommaker which was included in a recently published book," said Nielsen. "It was three or four years ago that she visited here, but she remembered Chris. That's the kind of guy he is."

Plum Creek Watershed Tour Slated

Seward — The board of directors of the Upper Big Blue Natural Resources District and local governmental officials will get a firsthand idea of what the Plum Creek Watershed in Seward and Butler counties is like and what possibilities exist for resources development when they tour the area next Thursday. The bus tour will begin in Seward in the morning and continue on to the Dwight area. Following lunch in Dwight, an 1 p.m. informational meeting will be held at the Dwight Legion Hall. This will be followed by a tour of a planned drainage project area southwest of David City. Another informational meeting is scheduled at 7 p.m. that night at the Seward Civic Center. Both meets are open to the public.

Scribner To Honor Hasebrook

Scribner — State Sen. William H. Hasebrook will receive the Native Son award from the Scribner Chamber of Commerce during ceremonies here Tuesday, April 22. He will be the fifth recipient of the award. Born on the family farm east of Scribner, Sen. Hasebrook operated a meat and locker system here before moving to West Point. While in Scribner, he served two terms as mayor and was on the City Council.

Dryland Sells For $900 Per Acre

Geneva — Two Fillmore County dryland 80-acre tracts were sold at auction here recently for a little over $900 per acre. The property, a part of the estate of Tracy Hughes, was purchased by Mervell Bumgarner for $145,000. The land is located six miles south of Geneva on the west side of U.S. 81.

Store Kraft Lays Off 19 Workers

Beatrice — Richard Cederberg, president of Store Kraft Manufacturing Plant here, announced that 19 employees have been notified they will be laid off, effective today. He said he does not know how long this layoff will continue, "but we hope it will not be long." Cederberg blamed the recession for the action. Last October 39 workers at Store Kraft were laid off due to strikes affecting customers and economic conditions.

Ag Day Set For Farnam

Farnam — Eco-fallow and weed control are topics to be discussed at Farnam's Ag Day here Monday. Hal Mustard, superintendent of the Dawson County Weed Control program, and Gail Wicks of the North Platte Experiment Station, are scheduled speakers at the 8 p.m. meeting.

Smudges On The Silver Screen

Recently a movie operator in Pierce, a northeast Nebraska county seat north of Norfolk, closed down his theater in protest against the lack of a sufficient number of family-type films which would keep his seats filled on a paying basis. The theater man will show only G-rated films and nothing else.

His decision to close has occasioned much laudatory comment in newspapers around the state. While we admire the theater owner for the courage of his convictions and are envious of the circumstances which allow him to exhibit such courage during financially demanding times, we don't necessarily agree with other editors who suggest that he was "forced" to close because of a sick movie industry.

Some general observations are in order.

Movie-goers in Lincoln have a better time of it than people in Pierce and similar towns because there are 20 screens here and they can see about anything and everything from the Disneyest of Gs to some fairly lurid, but censored, Xs.

But even the theaters which show the G-rated pictures from time to time have to mix their offerings because they couldn't, as a practical matter, make it by screening the G films alone. Just like the guy in Pierce. On the other hand, there is a theater in Lincoln which shows X-rated films exclusively and apparently it is doing well.

It is our opinion that the theater operator in Pierce probably has a more sophisticated audience than he realizes or will admit to, and that he could screen some GP or R films for the enjoyment of the townspeople and to his reward, and that he could sleep soundly at night without worrying that because of his moviehouse, the moral structure of the community would collapse.

It is our observation that there is nothing in an R-rated movie which will, of itself, topple the values held by an inherently decent young person who has benefitted from proper guidance by loving and respected parents.

Now, about the health of the movie industry: it may be sick in some peoples' minds because the avant-garde in taste works through mass media, such as film-making, and what is sometimes produced results in cultural shock. People aren't used to it, and may never be if the product is particularly repulsive and totally without value — in which case it soon will lose its chic appeal and commercial value as well.

But in general, the movie industry produces what sells — and that doesn't mean that the industry is sick, rather it reflects on the paying customers. Commercial movie-making is first a business and if it produces slop that is because slop is marketable. Look in the mirror or around you, not at Hollywood, for the pig.

As a general statement people vary — there are good and bad — but almost to a person we are intemperate in some respect. We eat and drink too much or drive too fast and we enjoy things that excite us, whether it appeals to our violent or prurient instincts. We are also addicted to comfort and ease. It is part of the human condition and that demand for comfort and satisfaction has contributed in large part to what we call the high standard of living in our developed society.

If commerce were keyed to the habits of the righteous and the austere, the world would be in a permanent recession.

What matters is that people can be intemperate and still be decent and credits to the human race. We can eat too much at dinner and see an R or X-rated film but neither affects our basic goodness — if we are decent sorts to begin with. And we can always go on diets or disregard what we see. And that applies to the young as well as the old as a general rule.

We, too, wish there were more G films for the family or the very young kids to see, but it is unrealistic to expect that the local moviehouse operator will be able to offer a steady diet of them.

And don't be too hard on him. The local theater is no more responsible for the state of the art or the level of morals than the library, which contains the most corrupt as well as the most enlightened ideas man is capable of thinking. The local movie operator is no more responsible for corrupting society than the grocer is for making you fat or Detroit is for making you a slave to gas, speed and chrome.

RONALD REAGAN

CALIFORNIA — It was Christmas Eve. The Great Depression had begun and unemployment was spreading across the land. There in our small town in Illinois, though, we thought things were going to be all right. All right, that is, until my father opened the envelope he thought was a Christmas greeting from his employer. I can never forget the long silence as he sat there holding that greeting, or his half-audible whisper: "That's a hell of a Christmas present." He had just learned that, as of that Christmas Eve, he was one of the unemployed.

Today, or any time, if you have a family to feed and you're laid off work through no fault of your own, unemployment — with all its anxieties — becomes the central fact of your life. If you can't find another job and, unlike the auto workers, you aren't protected by a guarantee of 95% of your wages during layoff periods, you have to turn to unemployment insurance or other public assistance to tide you over. And, that's why we have such programs, to help those who need it when they need it.

On the other hand, if you're an economist, you look for trends in the economy that will affect people by the millions. Both perspectives are valid. The economist knows that inflation, recession and unemployment can have a snowball effect and that a recession is, in part, psychological (not to discount such factors as federal deficit spending and too-easy consumer credit).

The very way in which unemployment statistics are

Unemployment Figures Deceptive

reported contributes sharply to the psychological part of the problem. They are presented by the media as a sort of statistical fright wig; scarifying headlines, with little analysis. In fact, the method of reporting such data by the Bureau of Labor Statistics is misleading, if not downright phony.

What the statistics provide is a reasonably good estimate (not an accurate count) of housewives who don't need but would like part-time work; young people still fully supported by their parents but who are seeking their first jobs; and even teenagers wanting paper routes or other after-school work.

What the statistics don't provide is a sharp focus on the actual number of breadwinners involuntarily unemployed, looking for a job to support a family, and drawing unemployment benefits if they are eligible. That number would be a true measure of our economic situation.

This is how England counts its unemployed. If we did it that way, our rate would be about 1% or less instead of the 8% the federal government is talking about (or the 10% George Meany is predicting). An official high in England's Labor government asked a friend of mine the other day if we were masochists. He said, "We know your figures are phony, and so do you."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics makes 50,000 random phone calls each month, and from that tells us our rate of unemployment as if they'd made an accurate nose count. In addition to those out of work because of economic trouble, their telephone "net" catches thousands in the other categories mentioned. Yet, as reported, all are lumped together as "unemployed," thus conjuring a picture of millions huddled in bread lines. Actually, more than half the unemployed will find jobs in five weeks or less (at any given time), the average for all is 10 weeks, and less than 7% have been without work for 26 weeks or longer.

Why does the BLS lump the actually unemployed with the like-to-be-employed and others?

Part of the answer may lie in the fact that certain federal programs are triggered into action when the so-called unemployment rate rises to a certain level. When it does, of course, it "proves" that all those bureaucrats are essential, for they must administer such programs.

Full reporting of the true unemployment picture is essential if we're going to avoid "psyching" ourselves into a depression. It's time the secretary of labor overhauled the reporting system. The telephone survey may have value, but only if the results tell the public how many people are looking for part-time work, how many are teen-agers, how many are new entrants in the labor force and, finally but most important, how many are breadwinners out of a job through no fault of their own.

The reports should also tell something else: what job skills are in surplus in some localities and in short supply in others. The National Federation of Independent Business recently surveyed its members and found almost one-quarter looking for workers to fill job openings.

The BLS could perform a real service by tallying such job skill needs so the truly unemployed can find them. It makes more sense than spending billions to create new public jobs which add little to national productivity.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Kissinger Doctrine

BOSTON — When the Soviet Union crushed Dubcek's Czechoslovakia in 1968, it claimed an inherent right of intervention to keep any "sister socialist state" from slipping out of the Soviet orbit. That was the Brezhnev doctrine.

Americans were sickened by the brutal cynicism of the Soviet rationalization. But if we open our eyes, we cannot avoid seeing that we now have a doctrine to match. It must be called the Kissinger Doctrine.

It appeared first in relation to the Allende government of Chile. In that context the doctrine could be stated as follows: "The United States is entitled to conspire against another country's constitutional government if we fear it might slip that country out of our orbit."

Henry Kissinger put the matter succinctly to the Forty Committee, the secret operations group that he heads, on June 27, 1970. Speaking of Chile, he said: "I don't see why we need to stand by and watch a country go communist due to the irresponsibility of its own people."

The torment of Cambodia shows that the doctrine also takes a second form: "If a government comes to power by a coup and takes its country into the U.S. orbit, Washington will do anything to prevent a change of that government — no matter how little support it has from its own people, no matter how terrible the cost to them."

Lon Nol overthrew the Sihanouk government in March, 1970. Whatever its role in that coup, the United States intervened quickly thereafter. In April President Nixon sent in American troops. He said the purpose was only to hunt Vietnamese communists, not to "expand the war into Cambodia." But war has raged ever since in that once so peaceful country, with the United States playing a dominant part.

The Ford administration is now putting extreme pressure on Congress for more aid to Lon Nol. What is the rationalization? President Ford explains that American policy is to help "where the government and the people of a country want to protect their country from foreign aggression or a foreign invasion."

"If You Don't Bail It Out, You'll Be To Blame For Letting It Go Down"

Americans in Phnom Penh concede that the war is a genuine civil war — Cambodians against Cambodians. Nor do they pretend that Lon Nol has much popular support. His corrupt, ineffectual government is totally dependent on the United States.

It is hard for Americans to admit this, given our historic ideals, but we are the alien intruders in Cambodia. That fact and the feebleness of the side we support are the reasons for the Khmer Rouge's success. The Vietnamese did play a commanding role in the period after Sihanouk's fall. But outside help to the Cambodian insurgents is now limited, compared to the American support of Lon Nol.

The U.S. has given $1.8 billion to Lon Nol so far. Americans still direct much of his war effort, and supply it entirely. From March, 1970, to August, 1973, when Congress called a halt, American planes dropped 442,735 tons of bombs on Cambodia. No Chinese nor Vietnamese planes have dropped bombs — or been given as aid to the Khmer Rouge.

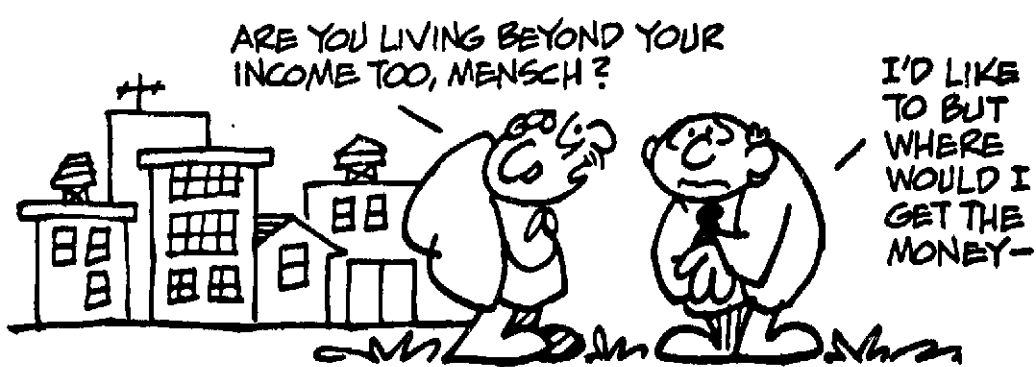

As a new excuse for more American aid to fuel this hopeless war, administration spokesmen say there might be negotiations if Lon Nol survives long enough. That is a desperate argument, and disingenuous. When the Khmer Rouge leader, Kheun Samphan, toured Eastern Europe in 1974, the U.S. ambassador in Phnom Penh, John Gunther Dean, urged that contact be made with him. Kissinger rejected the idea.

In the New York Times the other day, right next to the story about the latest Ford-Kissinger appeal for more arms to Lon Nol, there was a report from the Times correspondent in Phnom Penh, Sydney H. Schanberg; it told about what had happened to Cambodia in these five years. "Cambodia before the war," he wrote, was "so rich in her food produce that even the very poor were never hungry . . . Now it is a country of landless nomads with empty stomachs — human flotsam living amidst damp and filth . . . The countryside is charred wasteland . . ."

By IMOGENE KITTO BOUCHER

A Santee Sioux Indian
Niobrara, Neb.

Following publication of the recent series of articles on American Indian health a staff person at the State Department of Health, in Lincoln, was quoted as follows:

"I really don't believe the people in this country give a good goddamn about the Indians. They've (the people) got to be ashamed before anything can happen."

My questions are now directed to the State Director of Health, who has responsibility to administer an annual budget of about nine million dollars for the benefit of the citizens of Nebraska. These are tax funds which should be used efficiently to improve health services for all Nebraskans.

1. What has the State Department of Health done during the last year — or last several years — to improve health services in the Nebraska counties where American Indians are living?

2. Are federal funds not available to help counties establish local single or multi-county health departments? How can these funds be obtained?

3. Has the state director of health made information available to all county officials, and to rural Nebraska citizens, regarding opportunities open to them in the area of health service delivery? Why not?

4. What state legislation has been proposed which will make it easier for county officials to establish county health departments, and thereby provide skilled nursing services, plus the services of a health educator and sanitarian for rural areas not presently served?

5. Has the state director of health gone out to unserved rural counties, and demonstrated to local officials and citizens how a model rural health department should function? (Butler County has such a unit) Has he worked with health professionals and citizens to encourage the establishment of rural clinics or health centers, such as the one in Tekamah, Nebraska, which employs skilled nurse practitioners, along with a resident physician?

If these are not areas of responsibility for the state director of health, then why are we spending nine million dollars per year to finance the Health Department? Certainly the larger population counties in Nebraska do not need several hundred bureaucrats from Lincoln telling them what their health needs are (in Omaha, Lincoln, Grand Island, etc.).

Not only American Indians, but rural and urban whites, isolated elderly people, and others in need of quality health care have heard this kind of rhetoric from Washington and other places for years. In the meantime, Dr. Sutter and his staff of sociologists, engineers, and economists are in the midst of a $325,000.00 survey, funded by HEW, to re-examine health manpower needs in Nebraska. In other words, these people are going over the same ground which was explored two or three years ago, to rehash the needs for physicians, nurses, dentists, podiatrists, veterinarians, pharmacists, and other allied health personnel.

Most of this information is on file and readily available to the chancellor of the Nebraska Medical Center, in Omaha, and also at the offices of the Nebraska Medical Association in Lincoln.

In addition to the above data which came out of the Nebraska Health Project in 1972-73, at a cost of approximately $250,000.00, still more local information on health needs in all parts of Nebraska has been collected and evaluated for the express purpose of identifying local health needs and priorities in counties and multi-county areas known to be underserved. Dr. Sutter's bureaucrats have access to all this valuable information and data.

An executive summary of the Nebraska Health Project was published less than two years ago. This report covered in an easy-to-read volume, the summary of Nebraska's health facilities, manpower needs, regionalization plans, health alternatives and identification of unmet health care demands in each area of the state.

A follow-up volume (as required by HEW) was published about a year ago to further explain the objectives of the Nebraska Health Project. It has been suggested that copies of these publications went only to a limited number of people — some health professionals, plus those bureaucrats who presided over the Nebraska Health Project. This may explain why little has been done to implement the recommendations made by many participants, who prepared the Nebraska Health Project reports.

Has he made an honest effort, even on a token basis, to explain how skilled nursing can be brought to the homes of older people, young mothers, and children who are not now able to get decent medical treatment in small towns and rural areas?

It would seem that NOW is a good time for the director to go outstate and explain to citizens and local officials in those counties where health care is known to be needed, that alternatives do exist in health care delivery.

The citizens of Nebraska — American Indians, rural whites, Mexican Americans, and others who are underserved — deserve more than another survey of health manpower. They deserve some action, improved health services, and some direct information on how funds can be channeled into rural areas.

We are paying for a great many health bureaucrats, some of whom are doing important regulatory and inspection chores, and some of whom are doing questionable jobs in Lincoln. Someone should explain how more productive efforts might be made to deliver SERVICES to people, instead of massive reports and volumes of data which are easily ignored and not easily understood.

The state director of health should be given an opportunity to recommend methods of turning public health services over to county and local officials, so that state bureaucrats can be reduced in number. What are HIS alternatives?

The Slim Minority

Lincoln, Neb.
During the recent discussion concerning the open-campus policy practiced in the Lincoln Public High Schools, the high school student has picked up a rather bad reputation. As some members of our community would have us believe, high school students are a bunch of disrespectful hoods who can't wait for the noon bell to ring so they can race out to their parked cars to get drunk, smoke dope and pop pills. Then when this is over, race back into the school to show off for their peers. This sounds rather silly, but some people think this is an accurate description of today's youth.

As a high school student, I can say this is not the case. At the same time I would have to be narrow-minded to say social problems do not occur. However, these problems are not in the proportion that would justify closing the campus of Lincoln high schools at noon, as some would advocate. There will always be that 3% who cannot handle themselves in any situation. At the same time, there are the 97% who can and do handle themselves properly. Isn't it too bad that those 3% are the ones first noticed by the public?

I am inclined to think that for the most part, high school students are responsible and do handle themselves accordingly. These youth should be given credit for their actions, not punished.

It is too bad that if open campus is closed, it will be the 97% who will be locked up, while that 3% will keep on breaking rules, cutting classes, and leaving school at lunch time.

Police Only Human

Lincoln, Neb.
About the hassle with the police: The policemen are only doing their job. In the incident about the shooting of the black man, I feel that even though policemen are trained in self-control they are only human and sometimes feel threatened. Put yourself in their place. What would you do if someone came after you with a knife? Policemen are not superhumans who would just stand there. If I had been there, I would have shot him, too.

On the topic of DWI: The police have to be careful when they approach a car because the person might pull a gun. It's happened here in Lincoln before. You see all this happening on TV and never think it would happen in real life. Well, remember some of these stories are based on facts. Some place this has happened.

Sure, there might be a few cops who use their badges in the wrong way. But there are also the good cops who get the bad name.

I don't know about anyone else but I for one am on the side of the police.

Boosalis, Tiwald Lauded

Lincoln, Neb.
The proposal made by City Council Chairwoman Boosalis, which is currently pending before the council, and which will provide for full disclosure of all sources of campaign contributions, certainly deserves all the support any of us can provide.

Much can be learned about a candidate by understanding who supports him, and the revelations in our political process during the past couple of years have offered dramatic proof that we do indeed need to know.

It is refreshing to note that council candidate Steve Tiwald is fully supportive of the proposed ordinance and that he, in fact, plans to make public all his contributions and expenditures. We are fortunate in having people like Helen Boosalis and Steve Tiwald, who understand the importance of an informed public. Their commitment to openness could well be emulated by all candidates for political office.

March Winds Arrive, Gust High At Chadron

March winds arrived two days early in Nebraska as gusts over 50 miles per hour were clocked at Chadron Thursday.

Elsewhere in the state the northwest winds weren't quite that strong. In Lincoln gusts ranged up to near 20 miles per hour.

Temperatures Thursday climbed to 46 degrees at Grand Island, the first time since Dec. 12 that the mercury has been above 44 degrees.

March temperatures in Nebraska are expected to average near normal with precipitation in the east a little above normal and a little below normal in the west, according to the 30-day National Weather Service Outlook issued Thursday.

Normal precipitation for March ranges from around 1.50 inches in the east to an inch in the west.

NWS statistics show normal March high temperatures in the state range from the upper 30s to 50s in the north and to the mid-40s to mid-50s in the south. Normal lows range from the mid-teens to mid-20s in the north to near 20 to the lower 30s in the south.

Meanwhile, the flood outlook from the spring snowmelt indicates the greatest potential for flooding in the Missouri basin exists in southeastern Nebraska and western Iowa.

Flooding from the existing snow cover may bring light to moderate overflows in the upper reaches of the Big Blue basin and on Turkey Creek, the report said.

If the present snows remain in place and are augmented by normal precipitation during March, the Missouri River may run from three to five feet out of its banks between Plattsmouth and Kansas City, according to the NWS.

"Shallow overflows may occur along streams in the lower Platte basin of Nebraska including the lower reaches of the Elkhorn River and its north fork, the lower reaches of the Platte River tributaries in the Grand Island area, and the Salt Creek basin," the report stated. "Moderate overflows may occur in the Big Blue basin above Barneston."

Pius Sets Orientation

Pius X High School will hold an orientation program for parents and students who will be 9th-graders in the fall, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the school gym.

Principal John L. Strobe and guidance director Roger O. Borders will present information to prospective Pius X students, including freshman courses, studying in the modular school, participation in extra-curricular activities and graduation requirements.

Each family that attends will receive an information packet containing registration information. In the next few weeks, school counselors will visit each parish school to discuss and complete registrations for 1975-76 with each student.

Pius X officials said any student now attending public schools who is interested in attending the Catholic high school may make an appointment with the Pius X counselors.

'Bob Newhart Show' Actor Says Sitcoms 'Not Funny'

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

When Bill Daily's children were young, they weren't allowed to watch television. "There are more creative things that they can do," said Daily, better known as Howard Borden, the flakey airline navigator/neighbor on "The Bob Newhart Show."

In Lincoln Thursday, Borden didn't go so far as to describe general television programming as a total disaster, as some have done.

But he came close. "I don't like situation comedies. I don't think they're funny," said the man who appeared as a regular on three sitcoms ("Bewitched," "Farmer's Daughter," "I Dream Of Jeanie") before joining the Newhart show cast.

Although he excepted "M*A*S*H" from that criticism ("a very good show," he said of it), and said he is "too close to the Newhart show" to judge it, Daily questioned the humor of shows such as "All In The Family."

"That woman is an imbecile," he said, referring to the "All In The Family" character, Edith Bunker. "I don't think that's funny."

"I hate talk shows. I think they're crazy," Daily continued, adding that frequent station breaks and commercials are partially to fault.

And he said he doesn't "see any reason for (showing) violence" on television — especially when children are apt to be watching.

Does television have anything going for it?

"I like those old movies," Daily said, "mainly because I'm not involved in them."

Daily, 47, blames the dearth of good television programming on the viewing public.

There are talented, intelligent actors, producers and directors working in television, he said. They are in the business because they love it.

"Everybody wants to do a good show," Daily said. But viewers "don't watch" good shows.

"People use TV as background" noise, Daily said. And he speculated that "the more intellectual you are, the more (drivel) you want at night."

Daily said that he would like to see more television programs reflecting the type of mood conveyed in Spencer Tracy/Katherine Hepburn performances.

"I don't think anyone today can do... a charming show" on television, he said. "There is no romance in TV."

He said he would also like to see "intelligent scripts" written for women.

Yet, despite his criticisms of current programming, Daily believes in television's potential worth.

Because television viewing is a relatively inexpensive and accessible form of diversion, "I think the TV is the greatest medium for entertainment in the world," he said.

Cook Likely To Announce For Second Council Term

Informed sources say that City Councilman Steve Cook will announce today that he will seek a second term.

Cook, 49, an architect, has scheduled a 9 a.m. press conference. He has kept his plans quiet but speculation points to a re-election bid.

Cook was elected to the council in 1971, finishing a strong second in both the primary and general election balloting behind Council President Helen Boosalis.

Mrs. Boosalis is expected to announce her plans next week. The 16-year council veteran is said to have once decided to retire from city government after her current term but now is thought to be reviewing her options in light of apparent broad-based community support for either a Boosalis mayoral or council candidacy.

Of the city's incumbent officials, only Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has thus far formally declared for re-election.

The terms of council members Richard Baker and Bob Sikyta also expire this spring. Neither has announced officially.

The filing deadline for the April 8 city primary election is March 19.

Trust Plan May Be Deceptive

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas Thursday warned Nebraskans to be wary of salesmen currently promoting a potentially deceptive trust scheme.

The trust plan, called a "constitutional trust" or a "pure trust," is being offered to people with high incomes.

At meetings held throughout the state, the salesmen have told people they can avoid a substantial portion of their normal federal and state income tax liability by signing the trust agreement.

Douglas said he has been informed that in other states participants in the trusts have been assessed for taxes they attempted to avoid through the trust plan.

A definite ruling by the Internal Revenue Service on the legality of such trust plans is expected shortly. Douglas said there are strong indications such plans will be prohibited.

Douglas advised Nebraskans to call the consumer protection division at 471-2667 if they are approached concerning such a trust plan.

DEC Okays Power Plant

Dan Drain, state director of environmental control, Thursday approved a construction permit for a 575-megawatt coal-fired power station on the Missouri River, five miles south of Nebraska City.

Gene Robinson, chief of air pollution for the State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) said no protests were filed against the proposed plant which will be constructed by Omaha Public Power District.

Robinson said the plant will have a precipitator which will remove more than 99.3% of all fly-ash the 575-megawatt plant's boilers emit.

Sulfur dioxide emissions will be within new source performance standards, since low-sulfur coal will be burned, he said.

The progress on the Nebraska City plant contrasts with the trouble Nebraska Public Power District has run into for a similar plant it wants to build near Sutherland.

The DEC approved construction for that plant over objections of the Sierra Club which has taken the case to court.

Car Overturns; Woman Unhurt

A Lincoln woman refused medical treatment after her car overturned in a two-car accident at 48th and A Thursday morning.

Police said Gretchen Egbert, 50, of 225 Bruce, escaped with only a bump to her head when the car she was driving was in collision with a car driven by Lourie Stone, 17, of 4110 Spruce.

Miss Stone suffered a bruise to her knee.

LCS Unit To Scrutinize Catholic Bureau

The Catholic Social Service Bureau will once again be under the scrutiny of a four-member Lincoln Community Services (LCS) evaluation team.

The LCS planning division, apparently unsatisfied with the bureau's hesitancy to comply with improvements recommended last summer by the LCS board, agreed Thursday to reactivate the committee.

In August, Catholic Social Service Bureau was informed that it would receive United Funds through calendar year 1975, but that subsequent funding would be contingent upon compliance with certain conditions no later than June 1.

LCS demands centered around inaccessibility of the Roca agency to the general Lincoln population, reporting of services, evaluation and budgetary delineation of church-required activities.

Since that time, Catholic Social Service Bureau has opened a satellite office associated with the Over-Sixty Club which meets at Lincoln Mutual Insurance, 27th and Old Cheney Rd., Doug Higgins, LCS planning director, said.

Division members, however, questioned whether that location is as accessible as they would like.

They also questioned the bureau's intention to delete, rather than specify, church-related activities.

Members of the evaluation committee are Jerry Kromberg, division chairman; Fred Nevils, Bob Sittig and Clyde Johnson, representing the agency relations division.

The planning division also is seeking the power to monitor any drastic program changes within individual United Fund agencies through the calendar year.

It already has the power to filter out "unusual or substantial" program changes resulting in increased budget requests for yearly allocations through planning division seats on agency relations budget review teams, Higgins pointed out.

N.Y. Firm Also Wins Briarhurst I

Lancaster District Judge William Hastings has granted immediate possession of a second Briarhurst complex to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. of New York.

After the insurance company, which holds a first mortgage on both Briarhurst I and II, filed a petition seeking a mortgage foreclosure on Briarhurst I, Judge Hastings ordered that the company take possession of the complex with rights to oversee and collect rents.

The New York-based company gained possession of Briarhurst II after a similar petition asking for a mortgage foreclosure was filed last week.

The latest suit contends that the Briarhurst I complex managed by Briarhurst LTD, and the parent company, Boetel & Company of Omaha, owes $1,125,779 plus interest on the mortgage.

The two Briarhurst complexes are located along Highway 2 and Briar Park Drive.

New Map Shows Nebraska Vegetation Circa 1850

A new map showing major zones of native vegetation in Nebraska around 1850 has just been published by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Conservation and Survey Division. The author, Dr. Robert B. Kaul, is professor of botany in the School of Life Sciences at NU. His purpose in researching the project, he explains, was to collect information from recent field and herbarium work in Nebraska that has added considerably to knowledge of the distribution of plants in the state and to record that information using standard ecological classifications. Thirteen major zones are depicted on the map, each in a different color keyed to its dominant plant or plants. The distribution of the forests of 125 years ago is included along with the earlier range of salt marshes, many kinds of grasses and broadleaf forbs. Great changes have occurred in Nebraska from the time it was part of the Nebraska Territory to the present. Today the richer prairie soils are used so extensively for crops and grazing that only scattered remnants of the virgin prairie remain. Prairie fires, the grazing of huge herds of buffalo, the cutting of Nebraska's woodlands and the introduction of weeds that compete with native species have all had their effect on the distribution of vegetation throughout the state. To look behind the changes brought by these and other historical factors affecting vegetation in the state and to recover the distribution and character of vegetation zones in this region before Nebraska was admitted to the Union as a state was the goal of the map project.

SUN To Accept Enrollment After Opening

The director of student services for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) said Thursday that registration for SUN courses starting Sunday will continue to be accepted after that date. Rosemary Horner said although courses officially begin Sunday, when the first newspaper lessons are published in the Omaha World-Herald, those interested in enrolling may register after the official opening. She did, however, encourage coln in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education (Youth Wing) at 33rd and Holdrege, in Kearney at the State College Library and in Scottsbluff at the University of Nebraska Panhandle Station. There are no admission requirements for SUN's college-at-home courses, and anyone may enroll. Courses beginning next week include "The Consumer Experience," a practical approach to consumer problem-solving; "Making It Count," an introduction to computers; "Introductory Psychology," the study of human behavior, and "Accounting I." The courses may be taken for credit or on a noncredit basis at a reduced fee. Is Business Booming? Financial pages of the "Sunday Journal and Star" tell you. Rites Held For Employee Of IBP

Emerson — Funeral services were held here Thursday for Raymond Klug, 57, who died Sunday from injuries received in a fall at the Iowa Beef Processors plant at Dakota City. Rasmussen Tells Senators Agency Not 'In Feedbag'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Public Service Commission Chairman Eric Rasmussen told a legislative committee Thursday that his agency has been aggressive in pursuing the public interest and has not been "in industry's feedbag."

Rasmussen appeared before the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee to support Sen. Harold Moylan's LB311 to raise the five commissioners' salaries from $17,500 to $25,000 a year.

While testifying on the bill, Rasmussen was asked to respond to recent disclosures that telephone companies have given commissioners football tickets taken them on a fishing cruise and to an all-star baseball game.

Sen. Gary Anderson, chairman of the committee, opened the line of questioning, saying these favors are a concern of people in his district.

"Beyond Acceptable"

Anderson said the concern is that the commission has "gone far beyond what we thought was acceptable."

In his prepared statement, Rasmussen said there are "no winners in commission decisions, because he said often neither public nor the utility is completely satisfied with them."

Rasmussen noted the commission has challenged the distribution of grain cars to elevators, questioned the effect of private telephone interconnects on general telephone service, sought a reliable reporting system on the quality of phone service and challenged whether certain expenditures should be charged to ratepayers.

(The commission regulates the rates services offered by phone companies, trucking firms, railroads, grain warehouses and taxis.)

"Does all this sound as if we have continually been in the feedbag of the industries we regulate?" Rasmussen asked.

If the industries were dictating to the commission you can be sure many of these issues would have been decided in totally different ways.

"Aggressive"

"No, we have been an aggressive commission, and we shall continue to be an aggressive commission, if I have my way — whether this salary increase is accepted or denied."

Rasmussen acknowledged under questioning that the code of ethics adopted by the commission last Friday would not rule out a commissioner's accepting favors like the ones they are now under fire for Rasmussen favored a stronger version.

"What we see is the changing of standards of ethics or morals," he said. "When I was in the Legislature, getting football tickets was accepted practice. So when I first came to the commission, the football tickets weren't that big a thing to me."

"Today we have the ethics of a mistrustful society."

Rasmussen, a former state senator, said experience has taught him that more favors are offered to other public officials than to commissioners.

The bill's introducer, Moylan, said he did not take the matter of favors "that seriously." No commissioners, he said, have been influenced by the favors.

The whole matter, he said, has been "blown up a little, as is normal for the press to do."

"Can Accept" Freebies

Then Moylan remarked, "We don't get the salary they (commissioners) do so I think we (state senators) can accept those favors."

The Nebraska Motor Carriers Association testified in favor of LB311. No action was taken.

The committee also heard and held three other bills: LB524, to establish a state committee to control dissemination of criminal records, LB495 to establish a 10-year statute of limitations on home warranties, and LB525 to extend the licensing and inspection powers of the State Electrical Board.

Housing Body 'Partial Solution'

By The Associated Press

Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett said Thursday a proposal of his to create a state housing authority would be a partial solution to our state's housing problem.

The Legislature's Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee, which was hearing testimony on Barnett's LB327, held the bill for later action.

Barnett said the bill is designed to enable people to obtain mortgage financing who otherwise would be unable to purchase good housing because of high mortgage interest rates or general unavailability of mortgage financing.

He added that the program would not be in competition with private lending companies.

because the housing authority would only be able to assist a person if he had already been turned down for a mortgage. Even if the person could not afford the interest rate a private firm would charge the authority would have to go to private firms first to obtain funds, Barnett said.

"This is just a second chance for people to obtain loans," he said.

Representatives of low income housing authorities supported the proposal.

Lincoln attorney Robert Van Valkenburg opposed the bill saying the concept of providing housing was good but that Barnett's proposal was not the right way to do it.

He said a separate department should be set up under the control of elected officials who would be responsible for the operation of the authority.

In response to questions by Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, Barnett said the authority alone will be liable for the debt incurred — not the state of Nebraska.

Inspection Fee Could Rise

John Sullivan, state director of motor vehicles, asked the Public Works Committee Thursday to approve a bill which would increase the cost of motor vehicle inspections from $2 to $4.50.

Sullivan said he realized that a few years ago so many inspections were done so poorly that the program had to either

AFSCME Raps Merit Pay Plan, Asks Even Split

The Legislature should take the $2 million recommended by the Appropriations Committee for state employee merit pay hikes and distribute it evenly among all state workers, a public employees union official said Thursday.

The money should be added to the $468 cost-of-living boost already proposed for all employees, according to Mary Combs, director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees organizing efforts in Nebraska.

A merit pay proposal is "unfair and unworkable," she said.

"If this plan is adopted, the state's archaic grievance machinery will surely break down from the weight of the resulting appeals."

"These merit plans are never distributed as fairly as they are intended to be."

Most of the money, she said, would go to supervisory staff members and administrative personnel.

"What little does trickle down is distributed on the buddy system," she said.

Employees not deserving of the additional increase "should be fired, not slowly starved," Ms. Combs said.

Carpenter Rejects State Court Suit

By The Associated Press

Terry Carpenter said Thursday he has rejected a plan by his lawyers to ask the Nebraska Supreme Court to order the Unicameral to look at the ballots in the contested 48th District legislative race.

Carpenter said he ordered his lawyers to prepare a suit to be filed in U.S. District Court and told them to forget about the state courts.

Sources said his lawyers wanted him to ask the State Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus ordering the senators to take a look at the contested ballots.

The sources said the lawyers had researched the proposed State Supreme Court suit and were ready to move this week.

The Legislature voted last month to refuse to consider the contest because Carpenter failed to post a bond.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann declared William Nichol of Scottsbluff the winner of the seat after several of Carpenter's write-in ballots were thrown out.

Carpenter said forcing the Legislature to look at the ballots would be "just a waste of time for myself and the Legislature."

In a telephone interview from Scottsbluff, he said depositions taken during the earlier stages of the challenge proved the senators had already made up their minds before they learned that no bond had been posted.

Carpenter said the senators have already said, "We don't give a damn what the ballots say."

Atty Gen. Paul Douglas gave a special committee investigating the Carpenter challenge an opinion which said the Legislature did not have to consider the election contest because Carpenter failed to post a bond.

Carpenter said the Legislature had made up its mind a long time ago and "got a phony opinion from the attorney general" to justify its action.

Carpenter said the federal courts were the only ones concerned with constitutional rights.

He ran for lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary and lost to Gerald Whelan. He then started a write-in campaign for his old legislative seat. The two candidates on the ballot were Nichol and Ben Wilson of Mitchell.

Dorm Bonds Financing Bill Termed 'Stopgap Solution'

By United Press International

A bill to help the four state colleges and University of Nebraska get around problems stemming from payment of bond obligations on dormitories was described Thursday by Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings as a "stopgap solution."

The comment came during debate on LB388, which was interrupted when the lawmakers moved to other matters on the legislative agenda.

LB388 calls for a constitutional amendment which would authorize the Legislature to create a revolving bond fund to purchase existing revenue bonds issued in connection with construction of dormitories and student union facilities.

Outstanding Bonds

The state colleges have approximately $22 million in such bonds outstanding, and the University of Nebraska about $21 million.

The real issue, Marvel said, is better coordination of higher education. "You can't bail out the state colleges on a piecemeal basis," he said.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston agreed and moved to kill the proposal. He said postsecondary education must be reorganized for the future.

Koch suggested the State Colleges Board of Trustees could use "some imagination and vision" in attacking the problem of low occupancy rates in the dormitories.

Marvel said Nebraska has too many colleges and too many of them are moving in vocational-technical colleges.

One of the bill's sponsors, Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, said the large influx of students in the late 1950s and 1960s forced the building of many dormitories which now are only partially filled and are not generating enough money to satisfy the interest and principal payment on their revenue bonds.

Changing Lifestyles

The change in the lifestyle of young men and women factored heavily in the declining number of dorm residents, he said.

Cosponsor Ron Cope of Kearney said the Legislature was also partially to blame for lowering the legal age for drinking alcoholic beverages. This drove many students out of university residence halls where liquor is not permitted, he indicated.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha, chairman of the Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee, said a majority of its members thought the bill should be brought before the Legislature so the issue could be settled.

The problem of paying off the bonds at the state colleges is serious, he said, adding that the University of Nebraska is a "borderline" case.

At Kearney State, Cope said, the problem is being "turned around." Some of the dormitory space has been converted into apartments and that has helped, he said.

Legislature Just Avoids Illegal Vote

By The Associated Press

The Legislature nearly took an unconstitutional vote Thursday on whether to approve a $2 million appropriation for school districts to help pay for special education for handicapped children.

The Constitution requires five intervening days between a bill's introduction and final passage, and LB555 had one more day to wait.

No one balked when Education Committee Chairman Frank Lewis asked for a suspension of the rules to vote on the bill.

The assistant clerk of the Legislature, Walt Radcliffe, was giving the bill a final reading when the Unicameral bill drafter, Emory Burnett, rushed from his office to the clerk's podium.

He spoke to Clerk Vince Brown, who turned to presiding officer Jules Burbach and yelled, "Wait a minute!"

Burnett explained the constitutional requirement, Burbach told senators. "We jumped the gun," and the bill was set aside for action Friday.

The bill is intended to clear up the financial confusion surrounding LB403 which provides funds for educating the handicapped.

Legislative Bills Introduced

By The Associated Press
Bills introduced in the Legislature Thursday:

LB576 — Give the Nebraska State Historical Society authority over Fort Atkinson, near Omaha, rather than the Game and Parks Commission. Education Committee.

LB577 — Place restrictions on the use of groundwater. Public Works.

LB578 — Change requirements for board meetings of irrigation districts. Public Works.

Bills Passed

By The Associated Press
Bills passed by the Legislature Thursday:

LB126 — Requires state and local governments to withhold union dues and charitable contributions if employee requests. 27-16.

LB122 — Allows State Board of Education to require a four-year college degree for certification as a teacher. 35-5.

LB27 — Clarifies statutes regarding mileage payments made to state employees who use their own cars. 32-8.

Solons Approve Union Checkoff

The Legislature decided Thursday there should be no question on the right of public employees to have union dues deducted from their paychecks.

The decision was made with the 27-16 final approval vote for LB126, sponsored by Sen. Harold Moylan of Omaha.

Food Tax Bill Goes To Floor

By United Press International

The Legislature voted 29-12 Thursday to raise from committee a bill to do away with sales tax collections on food purchases.

The request to raise LB430 from the Revenue Committee, which voted 5-2 earlier to kill the bill, was made by sponsor Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

Chambers said he has been working on the matter of getting the bill on the floor and his only concern is to get a full debate.

A number of senators echoed what Chambers said, adding they were not committing themselves to voting for the bill once raised. Among them were Sens. Richard Marvel of Hastings and Ralph Kelly of Grand Island.

Both senators said a real debate on taxation was needed, and as Kelly put it, "This is the bill to do it on."

The raising of the bill took place with little debate, which Chambers said was also part of the agreement. He said the idea is to fully debate the measure only once — when it comes up for a first round vote.

Health Plan From Birth Is Advanced

By The Associated Press

The Legislature gave preliminary approval Thursday to a bill which would require family health insurance policies to cover children from the moment of birth.

LB28 would prevent companies from exempting coverage of children for a short time after birth. Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island said the bill would prevent companies from refusing to pay for health care for children with birth defects.

The Legislature also gave preliminary approval to a bill which would give the Lancaster County Board and the Lincoln City Council more authority over the City-County Planning Commission. It is LB111.

A third bill given preliminary approval would require judges to appoint an adult to serve as a "guardian ad litem" for juveniles if they are not accompanied in court by a parent or guardian. It is LB19.

Licenses Urged On All Animals Hunted In State

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora told the Legislature's Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee Thursday all hunters in Nebraska should be required to obtain a hunting permit.

Kremer was testifying in support of his LB343, which would extend the permit requirement to include jackrabbits and other animals that can now be hunted without a permit.

Kremer said game wardens have a problem because even though they may catch someone hunting without a permit, if that person says he is hunting jackrabbits or other animals for which a permit is not required, the officer cannot make an arrest unless that person has an illegal animal in his possession. The committee held the bill for more study.

Students Help On Tax Forms

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Need your 1974 income taxes prepared? University of Nebraska-Lincoln students participating in the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program are asking for your business — not for any monetary gain, but to gain experience in preparing tax returns.

The service, now in its third year, is provided free to Lincoln residents, according to VITA coordinator and UNL senior Dave Lechner.

This year there are four program sites: Nebraska Union, Room 225C, 6-10 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays; Willard School, 6-10 p.m. Thursdays; Lincoln Libraries Northeast Branch, 5-9 p.m. Wednesdays, and Lincoln Action Program (LAP), 1-5 p.m. Thursdays.

Branching Out
"This is the first year we have gone out into the community," Lechner said. "Previously our locations were pretty close to campus."

VITA consists of 24 student volunteers, most of whom are accounting majors and have had classes in tax accounting, Lechner said.

"The Internal Revenue Service trains our volunteers in two four-hour sessions," Lechner explained. "And the Nebraska Revenue Service gives our volunteers two hours of instruction."

"Our concentration is primarily on the 1040A short form," he said. "The IRS made sure the students knew the basics of this form. We also do some work on the 1040 long form."

Personal Returns Only
Lechner stressed that VITA prepares only personal, not business, returns. Most of the program's clients are students, low income or retired persons.

"We will also help special interest groups," he said. "Twenty of our volunteers man the four regular locations and the other four alternates go out on special assignment."

"In conjunction with the Lincoln Information Service for the Elderly, our volunteers went to seven senior Diner locations to fill out returns for senior citizens," he added.

"Anything we can't handle, we send to the IRS," he said. "Also, all of our returns are sent to Omaha to be counted and checked for mathematical errors.

"That scares some people. When they see you put all of those returns in an envelope to be mailed to Omaha instead of Ogden, Utah (the regional IRS station where Nebraska returns are sent), they think they are going to be audited."

"But it isn't an audit," he emphasized. "All returns are put through computers to be checked for accuracy."

Speaking on behalf of all the volunteers, Lechner said the program "gives you experience beyond what you can get in a textbook. For students who will become auditors, this gives them good experience in just talking to people. It teaches you how to relate to people."

And, because there often are "misconceptions" about students, Lechner said that meeting with citizens in the community promotes good public relations for the university.

The program is financed by the university's accounting department and sponsored by UNL Student Volunteer Services.

Persons interested in enlisting the help of the student volunteers may contact VITA personnel by calling 472-2209, the university or LAP.

They're Trying To Relive The Past

DEAR ABBY: I am still in love with the man I was in love with 42 years ago, when I was 16.

We both married different people. I had a very unhappy life being married to the wrong man for 41 years. Two months ago, my husband died. That's when I started to think about Benny again. I finally located him through his relatives, and I called him up. (He lives 600 miles from here.) When I told him who I was he nearly dropped dead. He couldn't talk much because his wife was there, so we made arrangements for him to call me from work. Now he calls me almost every day. We talked about old times and all the fun we used to have, and said he never stopped loving me.

His problem is his wife. They have been married for 40 years, and he doesn't know how to tell her that he doesn't love her, and he wants to be free to marry me. He said she is a sickly woman, she can't work, and he hates to hurt her.

Can you help us?

STILL IN LOVE
DEAR STILL: I know of no way for a man to tell his wife of 40 years that he wants to be free to marry his childhood sweetheart.

I think that you and Benny are trying to relive the past. It can't be done. Besides, Benny is very much married, and therefore unavailable. So do Benny, his family, and yourself a big favor, and get out of his life. You can't build happiness on the broken hearts of others.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 22-year-old daughter who is living with her boyfriend in a nearby town.

My friends and relatives don't know this and they are constantly asking me where she is. I get upset and start to cry and don't know what to say.

I raised this girl the best I could and I can't accept the fact that she turned out this way. How can I learn to live with this?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You can tell yourself that a 22-year-old daughter is responsible for her own lifestyle. If you raised her "the best you could," you needn't be ashamed. It's not necessary to say that she is living with her boyfriend. You can say that he is no longer living at home. It's true.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been a heavy smoker. (Four packs a day for the last 30 years.) Al had a heart attack last year, and the doctor gave him some orders. Quit smoking (which he did, believe it or not) and avoid all excitement. (He was more specific; absolutely no fooling around with young girls unless he wanted to die in bed.)

Now Al tells me he's nervous and restless. He says he has to lead a more "normal" life and can't give up everything he enjoys. He's asked me if I would rather have him go back to smoking again, or fooling around with young girls. Isn't that a choice for you?

How should I answer him? With all his faults, I love him and don't want to be a widow. But which is worse, lung cancer or a heart attack?

AL'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: It's a draw. But with a choice like that you'd probably worry less if you saw Al smoking. (P.S. Your Al certainly is a shrewd trader.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Test Your Bidding

By B. JAY BECKER

Partner bids One Heart, next player passes, and you have a part score of 60. What would you respond with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠KJ5 ♥J72 ♦AQJ4 ♣A96
2. ♠J8 ♥KQ96 ♦AJ984 ♣K2
3. ♠J74 ♥K9 ♦K84 ♣KJ632
4. ♠K6 ♥KJ74 ♦Q6 ♣AKQ85

1. Two notrump. Ordinarily—that is, without the part score—two notrump would show 13 to 15 points, notrump distribution and strength in the three side suits. Two notrump would be a forcing bid and the auction would continue until at least a game was reached.

But when you have a part score of 60, two notrump has a different meaning. First, it is not forcing at all and partner may pass with a suitable hand because game has already been reached. And second, the point-count requirement is slightly higher; it generally indicates 15 or 16 points and, by inference, suggests the possibility of a slam because responder is intentionally going one level past game.

2. Three hearts. Again you voluntarily overbid game because you want to suggest the possibility of a slam. Two hearts would not begin to suggest the potential slam possibilities, and you should therefore jump to three hearts. It would be dead wrong to respond two diamonds, which does not force partner to bid again and simultaneously fails to identify the excellent heart support. At the same time, the hand is not so overpowering that it demands expression by a jump-shift bid of three diamonds—which would be forcing.

3. One notrump. Ordinarily, you'd respond two clubs, but with a part score of 60 it is better to bid one notrump, which you're virtually certain to make on high-card power alone. It would be dangerous to bid two clubs with such a raggedy suit because partner might pass with two or three baby clubs and you might run into an unlucky trump distribution.

4. Three clubs. This jump-shift response is 100 per cent forcing and compels the opener to bid again regardless of the nature of the hand. A jump-shift differs radically from a jump-raise, which is merely an invitational step towards a slam and portrays strictly limited values. There is no precise ceiling for the strength suggested by a jump-shift response. The sky's the limit!

Division Study Finds Inefficiency In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — A retired, private consultant has come to the conclusion that there is waste and inefficiency in the operations of the city's permits and inspections division.

Mayor Edward Zorinsky said the study did not cost the city any money, and since tax money was not used, he does not feel obligated to make the report public.

Zorinsky also noted that the consultant found no corruption in the division, just inefficiency.

Dr. James Swick, director of the city's Housing and Community Development Department, declined to discuss the specifics in the report, but said he disagrees with some of the findings.

Zorinsky also declined to specify the alleged inefficiencies, saying such action would make the administration's job more difficult. However, Zorinsky did say poor employee morale was one of the findings.

Permits and Inspections Supt. Joseph Rogers did not comment on the report because he had not seen it.

Zorinsky said it will now be up to Swick to make recommendations for improving the situation.

Charged with armed robbery and jailed in lieu of $11,000 bond were John S. Ready, 21, North Platte, and James L. Worth, 23, and Michael J. Locker, 22, both of Scottsbluff, officers said.

Court Rules:
Intent Is Difference
In Release, Escape

By United Press International
The State Supreme Court ruled Thursday the difference between being released from jail and escaping is intent.

"When a person intentionally leaves a place of legal confinement by subterfuge, he does so to get away and this constitutes a breaking of custody and an escape therein," the court said.

And, the court added, that was exactly the situation involved when one James E. Glenn checked out of the Lincoln city jail on Dec. 20, 1973 using the name of another man due to be released.

Glenn, later arrested in Illinois, was serving a term of 60 days in jail and was to be released on Dec. 30.

He appealed his escape conviction, which carried with it a state prison term of one year, saying he really didn't escape because, as the court put it, "the evidence showed conclusively that he was released from jail by the officers."

The court said it assumed Glenn meant that force had to be used in order for him to be charged with escape because the statute under which he was charged uses the phrase "break such custody."

No force is needed, the court said. Breaking custody is any instance of "unlawfully leaving a place of confinement," the court held.

Glenn also contended on appeal the escape statute in question was invalid. The court termed that contention frivolous and declined to dwell on the point.

Court: Special
Assessment
Was Illegal

By United Press International
The State Supreme Court Thursday ruled the city of Seward had no authority to levy special assessments for improvements made in four water extension districts.

In so ruling, the high court set aside the portion of a lower court decision which said only two of the districts should be free from special assessments.

The problem, the Supreme Court said, was that the city could not levy the assessments unless the land in each of the districts had not been previously served by the Seward water system.

The court said all were served before the improvements and therefore there was no authority for the levies.

The assessments were challenged by landowners including the Seward School District, Concordia Teachers College and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

In the case of an Omaha woman, Barbara Jean Glouser, the Supreme Court upheld convictions for forgery and possession of drugs with intent to sell.

Mrs. Glouser, the mother of two teenage daughters, was sentenced to 10 years on each count to be served consecutively. On appeal she also challenged the sentences as being excessive.

The court disagreed saying in reality under current laws her sentence in total amounts to a term of 2-20 years, meaning she'll be eligible for parole in two years, despite the fact the judge said a flat 10 years in each case.

In other decisions, the Court:

—Agreed with the Grant County District Court's decision to sentence Bill Hildebrand to a prison term of 2 1/2 years for possession of a forged check with intent to defraud.

—Upheld the Douglas County District Court's conviction of Lenneth Freeman of robbery.

—Affirmed the decision of the Douglas County District Court in an estate dispute involving the estate of Joseph Clarkson.

—Upheld a $30,000 judgment handed down by the Douglas County District Court in a damage suit filed by Orval Jensen against Hawkins Construction Co.

Principals Leave Offices, Seek Out Students

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer
Remember the foreboding presence of the elementary school principal off in his office as the ultimate fear to avoid absolutely thinking about — let alone see?
For the rare small fry offender even the principals' secretary could evoke a shudder or a stutter not knowing what lay beyond that ante-room, where the principal was doing whatever it was that principals did.
These days, principals are not only roaming the academic halls, talking to and getting to know their students, they're taking on a commitment to awareness of their legal responsibilities, medical and ethnic concerns for each child.

About 70 elementary principals from southeast and central Nebraska gathered in Lincoln Thursday for the Nebraska Association of Elementary School Principals Region I mid-winter conference.
Region President Dick Spearman, principal of Bethany School in Lincoln, said administrators know they "need to think seriously about legal implications for their teachers."
For example, what is the teacher's responsibility for supervision on a field trip, and in case there is an accident? Supervision by a non-certified individual, a teacher aide, poses another question.

Teachers are aware of recent court decisions increasingly awarding students due process and rights similar to those adults enjoy, Spearman said, but teachers "can't interpret them until they're pushed to a court case."
Pediatricians spoke to the principals, discussing such medical concerns as hyperkinetic children, and the principals and teacher's role in helping them by possibly communicating with the family doctor, upon parental permission.

Dorothy Porter of the Lincoln Public Schools said principals' awareness of ethnic concerns of children is a "critical idea" and an issue for the nonminority as well as the minority community.
"We want you to be aware, yes," Mrs. Porter said. "But what are you going to do 'after that'?"
A mixed ethnic panel told the principals that parents of minority children want no special treatment for them, except that teachers should be exposed to more cultural awareness training to increase their sensitivity.
With that, panel members said, teachers can deal more effectively with problems resulting from different mores and backgrounds, and students will emulate their understanding and respect for other peoples.

Other needs pointed out included choosing books and information carefully to depict cultures accurately in a multi-ethnic curriculum, improved counseling from aroused awareness of ethnic differences, allowances for standardized tests that don't reflect the intelligence, understanding or background of minority students, and using minority people to share their experiences with children.
Aside from their awareness, what about principals' moves to return to the basics, recently portrayed as a national trend?
At Bethany, Spearman said, "We've never attempted to get away from the basics" and consider them "still extremely important."

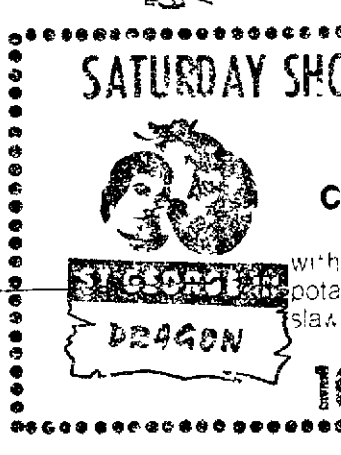

Hepatitis Case Found In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Three cases of infectious hepatitis have been confirmed at the Warren Elementary school here and a fourth case is suspected, according to John Wiley, head of disease control for the Omaha-Douglas County Health Department.
Wiley said no complications have developed with the affected children.
Wiley said school officials acted promptly in starting disease control procedures.

Hepatitis is a virus-caused disease, and is transmitted hand-to-mouth. Procedures implemented to insure the disease does not spread include making sure certain students wash their hands thoroughly.
Kitchen personnel have been checked and the school's sanitation is good, said Wiley.
Wiley said he knows of no other hepatitis cases in the Omaha schools but noted that the disease is sometimes difficult to pinpoint.

Airlift Personnel Secretive
— The New York Times
 Phnom Penh — The United States Embassy and Cambodian government opened the military airport here Thursday to allow the foreign press to observe the formal beginning of the expanded supply airlift to this isolated city. But the Americans flying the cargo planes and the United States Air Force men who come in every day from Thailand to direct the landings refused to discuss their mission. They said they were under orders to remain silent.

Sheila Levine is every single girl who ever had to attend her younger sister's wedding.

She's 25, she's not quite a virgin, and she came to New York because deep inside her burns a dream to be a somebody and to be loved by a somebody who will propose the glorious estate of marriage to her, preferably on the first date. Her mother calls this heart-burn. She calls it possible.

Vikings, Mustangs Victors

By JIM CUNNINGHAM
 Milford — Stromsburg overcame Goldenrod Conference rival Osceola, 60-56 here Thursday night to advance to the finals of the Class C District C-8 basketball tournament at Southeast Nebraska Technical College.

The winners led throughout most of the contest in keeping their cage season alive but found themselves having to repel constant second-half charges by pesky Osceola.

While Stromsburg never could comfortably shake its opponent, the other semifinal victor had to stage a furious comeback of its own to move into Saturday's championship game.

Raymond Central, a state tournament semifinalist a year ago, led only twice in the first half (both times by two points in the first quarter) but rallied in the second half to prevail, 60-55 over upset-minded Wahoo Neumann.

Neumann was on top by as many as 12 points before intermission and was in front, 32-23 at halftime. But Raymond Central came to life in the third stanza and tied things up at 41-all by the end of that quarter.

The Mustang momentum continued into the fourth period. The fast and furious pace which characterized the first three quarters started to slow down a bit with five minutes left as Raymond Central chose to control the ball and rely on some clutch free throw shooting.

The Mustangs hit 9 of 12 charity tosses in the final minutes including four of four by 5-9 floor general Dave Christensen.

While Christensen was directing the ball-handling, 6-6 senior center Brian Ubben took control of the inside play as the game progressed.

He scored eight of his 14 points in the final stanza in addition to controlling the boards and blocking several shots.

Christensen led all scorers with 19 tallies, one more than the total registered by Neumann's 6-5 Dustin Morton.

Stromsburg's victory was garnered for the most part during a three-minute span in the second period.

Osceola took its only lead of the game at 17-16 with 5:53 left before halftime but then suffered during a spell in which Stromsburg scored 15 points while the Bulldogs could only manage a single free throw. Stromsburg held a 31-22 half-time lead and maintained leads of six-10 points during nearly all of the second half.

Jeff Johnson led Stromsburg scoring with 16 points while Osceola counterpart Jeff Johnson topped his team with 13.

Plainsmen Triumph, 76-74

Denver — Nebraska Wesleyan rallied here Thursday night to defeat Metropolitan State College, 76-74, keyed by Blake Butler and Tom Maupin.

Butler made a basket with 1:16 left to tie the score, 71-all, as the Plainsmen now 11-11, had trailed by 16 points early in the second half.

When Metro brought the ball down the court, the 6-9 Butler executed a steal, drove the length of the court, made a layup, was fouled on the play and sank a free throw to complete a three-point play.

Metro then made one free throw to close to within two points, 74-72. However, Maupin was fouled and made two free throws to seal the win with eight seconds to go.

Butler finished with 24 points and 17 rebounds while Gene Parks added 17 points. Joekel 14 and Maupin 11.

Gene Ogle paced Metro which finished its season at 6-15 with 24 points with John Thornton scoring 20.

Metro broke open a close game in the first half by taking a 23-21 edge to construct a 45-31 halftime lead.

The Plainsmen only made 14 of 45 field goals in the first half to Metro's 19 of 33, but the Plainsmen connected on 21 of 45 field goals in the second half to Metro's 12 of 27.

The Capital City team will end its regular season here Friday night against Regis College.

Knights' Carveth Aims For State All-Around

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Omaha — Lincoln Southeast's Carolyn Carveth adapts well to the pressure of tough competition.

Both Carveth and pressure will be featured along with teams and competitors from across the state Friday and Saturday as the first Nebraska State High School Girls Gymnastics Championships open at Northwest High School.

Carveth captured the A-1 district all-around title in Lincoln last week and finds herself amidst the battle for the state all-around title without a team.

Southeast lost its bid to represent the district when both Northeast and East finished ahead of the Knights to qualify, making Carveth all the more determined to do well in the all-around.

"Carolyn really outdid herself in that meet (districts)," said Southeast coach Lavonne Uffelman. "She really performs well under pressure. The bigger the meet, the better she does."

Carveth and coach Uffelman got a chance Tuesday night to view the main competition in the all-around when Omaha Northwest visited East for a dual meet.

Northwest boasts Metro-Conference all-around champion Beth Brown as the mainstay of the team figured to be the favorite for the first state title.

Northwest scored a district high 91 points en route to its berth in the state meet Lincoln Northeast was second high with 84.

Northwest's score against East was 86 and Uffelman was impressed with their overall strength. "They missed a bit on the uneven bars and still scored 86 points. I can see how they could score 91," she said.

Despite Brown's superior performances throughout the season, Uffelman has confidence in Carveth's chances in the all-around.

Carolyn Carveth

"We're really pulling for Carolyn," Uffelman said. "If she hits everything, she'll do all right. I still feel she has a chance on the uneven bars (for first place). She has one of the smoothest routines I've seen."

"She's still working on little things," she added. "We don't want to change a whole lot. Drastic moves would hurt the continuity of her routine right now. We'll go with what worked in districts."

Carveth and Becky Nider, both juniors, will represent the Knights in six qualifying positions.

Omaha (AP) — There's good news for Creighton basketball fans in the Omaha and Lincoln metro-areas.

KMTV-TV, channel 3 in Omaha will carry the upcoming clash between the Bluejays and Marquette, according to KMTV sports director Jim Kelter.

The March 8 contest is expected to draw a full house at Omaha's Civic Auditorium.

Marquette is rated sixth in the nation, according to the latest weekly poll by the Associated Press, while Creighton is ranked 13th.

Linda Dean each qualified for all four events plus the all-around.

East established itself as a contender with 80 district points and eight different girls in 10 qualifying positions.

Lincoln High rounded out Lincoln qualifying with two girls in two events.

East's individual title hopes hinge on the performance of floor exercise performer Lori Jones, a solid first place finisher all year.

In the team race, Omaha South (81 in districts) and Omaha Burke (80) will join Northwest, Northeast, East and other qualifiers. Omaha North, Benson and Westside.

Friday's competition will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the team and all-around competition. Saturday at 1:30 p.m. the top 10 in each of the four events will compete for individual honors.

York Falls To Tech, 96-82

Carl Selmer
Selmer Named Miami Mentor

MIAMI (AP) — Pete Elliott resigned Thursday as head football coach at the University of Miami to devote full time to his job as athletic director. He named Carl Selmer to replace him as head coach.

Selmer, 49, a former assistant to Bob Devaney at Nebraska, was hired as an offensive coordinator when Elliott took over the head duties. He never was a head coach but spent 11 years at Nebraska and five years at Wyoming, both times under Devaney.

Selmer said he was switching Bob Herndon from defensive coordinator to offensive coordinator and Jim Walden from offensive backfield coach to defensive coordinator. Herndon came with Selmer to Miami from Nebraska.

Selmer said he hoped to install a veer attack before Miami's 1975 season.

Tribe's Training Rules Eased

From News Wires

Frank Robinson, the major leagues' first black manager, got off to a perfect start Thursday, welcoming his Cleveland Indians the first day of spring training with the happy news he'll have no curfew at all.

"That's for the regular season," Robinson told a group of 27 pitchers and catchers who reported to the Indians' quarters in advance of the main body of the team due Sunday.

"While we're down here in spring training," Robinson said in his brief opening message to his players, "I'll expect you to be back in the hotel by 2 A.M. That should allow you all enough time."

Most managers impose a midnight curfew during spring training. Robinson conceded he had never heard of a 2 A.M. curfew before, but said it was his own idea. He doesn't really believe in curfews.

The New York Mets signed their last two holdouts when second baseman Felix Millan and outfielder Jorge Roque agreed to terms.

Millan, who slumped from .290 in 1973 to .268 last year is estimated to have taken a $5,000 cut to $55,000.

Infielder Rick Burleson became the final Boston Red Sox player to agree to terms, it was announced by his attorney Jerry Kapstein.

Burleson, a second baseman-shortstop who is expected to play mostly at second this season, batted .284 in 1974 with 44 runs batted in.

Shortstop Jim Mason completed the list of New York Yankees' regulars to sign 1975 contracts when he inked his pact for an estimated $32,500.

Mason, who was purchased from Texas in December of 1963, became the regular shortstop for the Yankees last season, replacing Gene Michael.

Mason came along fast the second half of the season and wound up with a .250 batting average.

The lefthanded hitting Alabamian had 18 doubles, six triples and five homers and is hopeful of improving his batting average by about 25 points this season.

He figures that the Yankees will see less lefthanded pitching this year and that figures to help him.

The only unsigned players are all reserves — Otto Velez, Alex Johnson and Walt Williams and all are expected to be on hand Saturday morning when the first full workout is scheduled.

Edward N. Cole, former General Motors executive, is no longer interested in buying the Baltimore Orioles, according to his wife.

A freak injury has made coach Billy Hunter the first casualty of the spring for the Baltimore Orioles.

The veteran third base coach, who leads the club in calisthenics every day, damaged a cartilage in his right knee during exercises and was sent to the hospital for examination.

He was released a few hours later but faces the possibility of surgery after the season is over.

Relief pitcher Tug McGraw completed his cross-country drive from California and reported to the Phillies' spring training camp.

Knights, East Eye Crowns

By DRIVY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Next week's first round district tournament matchup is on the horizon, but Lincoln East and Lincoln Southeast will concentrate on conference basketball priorities this weekend.

The Knights can claim the first Eastern I-80 Conference championship with a Friday night win over Papillion at Johnson Gym.

Fourth-ranked East directs its attention to the Trans-Nebraska Conference race. North Platte completed Trans-Nebraska play a couple weeks ago with a 5-1 record and is set for the Big 10 playoff Friday night against Norfolk at North Platte.

Hastings, 4-1 in the league race, and East, 3-1, entertain hopes of tying North Platte for a piece of the conference pie.

The Spartans play at Hastings Friday night in a pivotal contest to settle the Trans-Nebraska picture.

Actually, North Platte can win the title outright, if East wins at Hastings Friday night, then loses to Grand Island in the season finale Saturday night at East.

The Southeast loss pretty much put us out of contention in the city and Eastern I-80, so we'd like to salvage something out of the Trans-Nebraska, East coach Paul Forch said.

We also have to keep some momentum for district play he added. "We can't afford to have a bad weekend here and expect to have the poise and confidence we need for districts next week."

Southeast coach Wally McNaught, acknowledging his team's slow start this season, feels fortunate to be in line "to achieve high goals. It's important to feel a sense of accomplishment."

"Multiple factors have gone into making it possible," McNaught said. "It's simplistic to say we've finally put it together."

The Papillion game will mark Southeast's fourth game in seven nights.

"Papillion does a lot of things well," McNaught said of the Monarchs, rated No. 2 behind Omaha Central in early January before running into problems and losses.

They were capable once and they're capable again," McNaught said. "We'll have to play well to win. It's a formidable challenge heading into district."

In addition to East at Hastings and Southeast Papillion at Johnson Gym Friday night, Lincoln Northeast hosts Ralston at East. Lincoln High plays at Millard and Lincoln Plus-X plays at Omaha Gross.

Grand Island at East is the only Saturday game involving a Lincoln prep team.
